Do we ever speak to daffodils?
Do they ever answer?

... it is necessary to move through that threshold.

The image shows four people in silhouette against a dramatic sunset sky. From left to right: a person stands holding a rope, a person is in mid-air jumping, another person is also in mid-air jumping, and a fourth person stands on the right holding the other end of the rope. The sky transitions from a deep orange near the horizon to a dark, cloudy blue at the top. The foreground is a dark silhouette of a grassy field.
