

PUBLICATION

The first Eco Issues article will appear in our April 2024 issue: 'Global Ecological Collapse and the Power of Teachers' by Alan Maley.

We hope it will encourage and inspire teachers to contribute articles for subsequent issues. We already have major articles in hand from Chris Graham, incoming Vice President of IATEFL and Jonathan Dykes, of Green Standard Schools.

Many others are already coming in.

ECO ISSUES

HLT Mag announces a major new section: Eco Issues.

This is in response to the existential threat of climate change for the whole of humanity. It reinforces our belief that teachers can make a difference in changing the mind-sets and ultimately the behaviours of their students.

Pilgrims has been a pioneer in helping teachers to develop and flourish as creative, humanistic agents. So this new initiative by HLT Mag continues this belief in the power of teachers to change the world.

CONTRIBUTIONS

We welcome articles, long or short on any aspect of climate change and associated issues and the impact language educators can have.

We also welcome short reports on new materials and classroom activities, as well as reviews of publications, links to resources, information about future conferences and webinars – and poems.

These should be sent, as usual to the Editor of HLT Mag:

I am only one ...

*Can I save the world? I'm only one - but I am one.
Can I play a part? I'm only one - but I am one.*

*I look around me, see the suffering everywhere.
Can I halt the hunger? I'm only one - but I am one.*

*I watch the world falling to pieces before my eyes.
Can I stop the rot? I'm only one - but I am one.*

*War, famine, floods, fires and every kind of horror -
What chance do I have? I'm only one - but I am one.*

*But one plus one is two, two plus two is four – and soon
We're a multitude: I'm one, yet so much more than one.*
